Edwin Meese to resign as U.S. attorney general

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edwin Meese III on Tuesday announced plans to quit later this summer, even though he said a government prosecutor's 14-month probe into his personal ethics "completely vindicates me."

Meese made his surprise announcement at a news conference in Sacramento, Calif., 3,000 miles away from where Independent Counsel James McKay filed his 830-page report with a federal court. The document was not made public, but it recommends no criminal indictment against Meese for his ties with the scandal-tarred Wedtech Corp. or any other activity, according to sources.

Each aspect of the investigation involved Meese's relationship with longtime friend E. Robert Wallach, who is under inlnctment for alleged racketeering in the Wedtech scandal.

Meese said he informed President Reagan of his decision by telephone shortly before announcing it at a defiant news conference in which he said false allegations "have been put to rest." He said he would return to private life either late this month or in August.

The president praised Meese, his confidante of two decades, as a "darned good attorney general" and said he had no one in mind to succeed him. "That will all come later," said the president.

Meese's decision removes a stumbling block from Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign. The vice president is said to be uncomfortable by the continuing controversy over the attorney general's actions, but he has refrained from criticizing Meese publicly.

On the other hand, Meese has been a favorite political pubnching bag of the prospective Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis and other Democrats.

In a written statement, Bush said only: "Ed did the right thing and I wish him well."

Meese said he resisted calls for his resignation while McKay was conducting his probe because he refused to "allow myself to be hounded out of office by false accusations."

But now, he said, those allegations "have been put to rest" and the time has come for him to return to private life.

Meese thus announced the end of a tenure as the nation's top law enforcement official that was stormy even before he took office. He survived an attempt by some Senate Democrats to block his confirmation in 1983, and was involved closely with the appointment of two failed Supreme Court nominations.

Thoughout it all, though, Meese held the trust of the man who counts most in the Reagan administration. The president turned to Meese to conduct an early investigation into the Iran-Contra affair — a probe which reaped Meese more criticism from congressional Democrats — and it was Meese who first announced to an unsuspecting world that proceeds from the sale of arms to Iran had been diverted to the Contra rebels.

It was none of that which prompted the investigation by McKay which culminated in the report he filed with a special panel of appellate judges in Washington. The report delved into Meese's ties with an Iraqi pipeline project, and two other enterprises.

Telemarketing amendment may limit solicitation hours

By DOUG GIBSON
Senior Reporter

The hours during which telemarketers may solicit residential customers could be restricted by the Federal Trade Commission if an amendment to a telemarketing fraud bill sponsored by local congressman Howard Nielson becomes law.

"House Resolution 4101, or the Telemarketing Fraud Prevention Act, was passed June 28 in the House," said Nielson's press secretary Ruth Webb McCormick. "It was passed by a voice vote of acclamation."

"The congressman's amendment would direct the FTC to determine exactly what hours are reasonable for telemarketers to solicit potential buyers at home," she said.

According to Nielson, Utah county constituents seek to stop late night and early morning telemarketing calls from solicitors. "Anyone who has ever been awakened in the night to receive an unsolicited phone call from a person or a machine trying to sell them something has probably felt a lot of frustration."

"Telemarketing is becoming a very popular way of doing business in this country," said Nielson. "However, as the popularity of telemarketing grows, so do the abuses," he said.

"Actually, the congressman introduced a similar measure requiring telemarketers to operate from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. as a bill last year," said McCormick. "The bill was still out there and when the Telemarketing Fraud Prevention Act was introduced it was more efficient to add it as an amendment."

Nielson stressed that he is not trying to close the businesses or stop phone solicitation. "We are not trying to close down businesses or stop the phone calls altogether, but it is not unreasonable to expect solicitors to call during decent hours," he said.

According to McCormick, the Utah House of Representatives passed similar legislation earlier this year restricting the hours telemarketers can solicit Utah residents.

Furor over airbus downing

Reagan expresses 'deep regret'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, in a careful diplomatic overture following the U.S. downing of an Iranian jetliner, urged Tehran to work with the United States to end the Persian Gulf war despite the icy distance between the two nations, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Reagan's message, sent Sunday through Swiss intermediaries, expressed "deep regret" that an American warship earlier that day had shot down the Iran Air passenger plane over the gulf with 290 people aboard.

"It was not an intentional act," Reagan said in the message, which was made available at the White House and the State Department on Tuesday.

But even while the president called the downing by the Vincennes of Iran Air Airbus A300 an accident, U.S. officials delayed a decision on paying compensation to the victims of the disaster at least until a Navy team completes an on-the-scene investigation in about two weeks.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater called the inquiry the "first order of business." A senior State Department official, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, said "we have not made a decision" and that neither Iran nor the families of the victims had made any claims.

A six-member Navy investigating team arrived on the warship Tuesday to sort through conflicting computer records, including a determination by another American ship in the gulf that the jetliner was flying above 12,000 feet rather than at about 7,000 feet when it was shot down.

At the Pentagon, chief spokesman Dan Howard said the Iranian airliner had been broadcasting a radio identification signal on a frequency used only by military aircraft, leading the skipper of the Vincennes to believe he faced attack.

Howard said the Iranian aircraft was broadcasting over a radio transmitter known as Identify Friend or Foe "in two modes. It was squawking on Mode-3, which is … a common identifier for both military and civilian aircraft, used in air traffic control."

"It was also sending signals on a military mode, Mode-2," said Howard. "And the signals that … the Vincennes was receiving from that aircraft, were signals that we had previously identified or associated with an F-14" jet fighter. "No commercial airliners use Mode-2," he said.

Right, a relative weeps during the memorial service held for the 290 passengers shot down Sunday.

In other developments Tuesday:

—Iran's military commander-in-chief, Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, declared in a report on Tehran Radio: "We cannot allow ourselves to refrain from taking revenge. The choice of timing is up to us, and not to America."

—A man purporting to speak for Islamic Jihad claimed the pro-Iranian faction would kill one of two American hostages it was holding, but police in Beirut said the deadline passed without incident. It was not possible to authenticate the call.

—Peggy Say, sister of hostage Terry Anderson, said she had been told that he might be released over the Fourth of July weekend, but those hopes were dashed by Sunday's attack in the Persian Gulf.

Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, has been held the longest of 18 foreign captives in Lebanon.

—An Airbus spokesman said the downed jetliner had been delivered to Iran Air six years ago with two transponders that should have responded to identification requests from the Vincennes.

—Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said his panel will be briefed on the incident Wednesday afternoon by the Defense Department.

Judgment should be reserved, Nunn said, until answers have been provided for such questions as: "What intelligence did we have regarding any threats? What were the rules of engagement and the command decision-making chain for this situation? What are the technical capabilities of the Aegis system? How have we previously handled commercial airline traffic in this region?"

The call for compensation came from Capitol Hill, led by House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, and Sen. John Warner of Virginia, the senior Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Bangerter pushes tax rebate plan

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Gov. Norm Bangerter urged the Legislature on Tuesday to adopt his $80 million tax rebate plan, but asked lawmakers to postpone action on Utah's thrift crisis.

The thrift issue was expected to be one of the principal items on the Legislature's agenda, but Bangerter asked lawmakers to defer because negotiations with depositors still are underway.

That left as the major concern the governor's proposal to rebate surplus income tax revenue and reduce tax rates by 5 percent.

House Majority Leader Nolan Karras, R-Roy, said the Republican majority probably would accept Bangerter's plan, with some minor modifications proposed in a bill by Sen. Lyle Hillyard, R-Logan.

Hillyard's bill would raise minimum refund from $10 under Bangerter's plan to $25. Those who qualify for a rebate of less than $10 would not receive a check in the mail, but would be able to file for the amount as a credit on their 1988 state income taxes.

The state faces a $110 million revenue surplus, including $84 million in income tax.

"I promised taxpayers that if the state income tax generated more than anticipated, I would return it them, and I intend to keep that promise. I hope you do to," Bangerter said.

On the thrift issue, Bangerter said he had hoped to have presented the Legislature with a settlement with depositors who lost millions of dollars in the collapse of five thrift and loan institutions, but negotiations are taking longer than expected.

"I recommend you temporarily defer it until we determine whether there is some satisfactory, reasonable way to bring this matter to a conclusion. Depositors' counsel consurs in the recommendation," he said.

Some 15,000 depositors face an estimated loss of more than $40 million as a result of the failure of the thrift and loan industry in 1986 following the failure of the private deposit insurance fund, the Industrial Loan Guaranty Corp., which had been created by the Legislature. A task force has recommended the state reimburse the depositors.

Karras said the removal of the thrifts issue probably would be welcomed by most legislators and would greatly reduce the length of the session.

"If the thrift issue stays off, I think we'll get out of here today. It strengthens our hand to say, 'You've got to negotiate with the governor,'" he said.

Democrats vowed to fight a provision of Bangerter's rebate plan that would partially restore the deductibility of federal income taxes from a resident's state tax liability.

The deductibility was removed in 1987 as part a of a tax overhaul.

Fireworks spark fires on 4th

The Fourth of July fireworks did not all end with a bang this year. At least three of them ended in fires.

Monday at Carroll Hall, in Heritage Halls, children playing with smoke bombs started bushes on fire, said Denise Adams, head resident of Carroll Hall.

"Kids were lighting smoke bombs in front of the building when one rolled into the bushes and caught them on fire," said Adams, "The flames from the fire were jumping up to the third floor."

The aftermath from a fireworks fire that burned the brush in front of Carroll Hall in Heritage Halls July 4.

Especially For Youth participants eagar for some excitement mistook the flames for a bonfire.

"Following a hurdle activity on the Deseret Towers field, we smelled smoke," said Janet Price, an Especially For Youth duty counselor from Slippery Rock, Pa., "Someone said, 'Hey, there's a bonfire,' but when we got to Carroll Hall we found out the bushes were on fire."

The Carroll Hall fire was not the only fire in Heritage Halls on Independence Day. According to police reports, children playing with matches near Snow Hall threw them into a dumpster and caught the garbage on fire.

Earlier in the weekend fireworks caused a fire in the grass field by Wymount Terrace. Police reports said residents were able to put the fire out. Fires in Utah county also resulted from firework celebrations.

Five organizations responded Sunday to a 40 acre firework-related brush fire between Orem and Lindon. Orem Fire Division Chief Ron Mosher, said through a cooperative effort the fire departments of Provo, Orem, Pleasant Grove, American Fork and the Forest Service were able to extinguish the fire.

Mosher said there was a great concern that the fire would spread to the mountain and that there would be possible land slides because of the water wells on the mountain.

"It would have been havock," said Mosher. "Luckily, we put it out before it got there."

According to Paul Bringhurst, crime prevention specialist for the University Police, the fireworks law in the Utah Code states that fireworks may legally be discharged in Utah three days prior to, on the day of and three days following July 4, July 24, Jan. 1 and Chinese New Year.

In the Provo City Ordinance, referring to the use of fireworks, it states, "Fireworks cannot be discharged 100 feet of anyplace where fireworks are sold." Also, fireworks can not be used within 300 feet of any church, hospital, rest home, retirement center, school building or similar institution.

It is illegal in Provo to make, sell or discharge any homemade fireworks.

Treaty limits nuclear missiles

Soviets and U.S. begin three-year arms verification process

By APRIL D. LOWRY
Senior Reporter

Editor's note: The Soviet inspection team has arrived in Utah and will begin implementing the verification process of the INF treaty. This article is an analysis of the provisions of the treaty and an explanation of the agency which will head U.S. verifications.

The treaty between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics for elimination of their intermediate-range and shorter-range missiles—the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty—was signed by General Secretary Gorbachev and President Reagan on December 8, 1987, in Washington D.C. Signed copies were exchanged during the Moscow Summit.

The INF treaty is of unlimited duration. A party may withdraw from the treaty if it decides that extraordinary events related to the subject matter of the treaty have jeopardized its supreme interests.

> The treaty is of unlimited duration. A party may withdraw from the treaty if it decides that extraordinary events related to the subject ... have jeopardized its supreme interests.

The INF treaty obligates the United States and the Soviet Union to eliminate all of their ground-launched ballistic and cruise missile systems having a range capability roughly between 300 and 3,400 miles (500 and 5,500 kilometers), and gives both sides the right to monitor compliance with the treaty.

Under the terms of the treaty, the two countries will eliminate the intermediate-range missle systems in two phases over three years; the shorter-range missile systems must be eliminated within a single 18-month period.

Since the INF treaty entered into force, neither side is permitted to produce or flight-test any intermediate-range or shorter-range missiles, or produce their launchers.

While the sides are prohibited from conducting any launches of shorter-range missiles whatsoever, they may launch up to 100 intermediate-range missiles within the first six months of the treaty for the sole purpose of destroying them. Such launches cannot be conducted in a manner that could produce useful information for missile development, and those launches are subject to on-site inspection.

Although the INF treaty is solely between the United States and the Soviet Union, it also involves basing countries, which are countries other than the United States and the Soviet Union where the treaty-limited missiles and related support equipment are located. NATO Basing Countries include the Federal Republic of Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, Italy and the United States. The Warsaw Pact Basing Countries include East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

The treaty acknowledges the respective rights and obligations of the basing countries and the United States to facilitate and manage inspection activities in Western Europe. All INF-related activities conducted within the territory of a basing country will occur in full cooperation with the government of that country.

The On-site Inspection Agency was established on January 15, 1988 to implement the inspection provisions of the INF treaty. OSIA is a field-operating agency of the Department of Defense and reports to an Executive Committee composed of the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Under Secretary of Defense for Policy and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The OSIA mission consists of inspection and escort responsibilities. This involves the management of U.S. INF-related on-site inspection activities in the Soviet Union and Warsaw Basing Countries and the coordination of activities associated with the Soviet Union's inspection of U.S. INF facilities in the United States and NATO Basing Countries.

The OSIA is also responsible for continuous monitoring of a Soviet missile assembly facility at Votkinsk, Soviet Union, and coordination of the Soviet Union's reciprocal monitoring of the U.S. missile production facility in Magna.

Personnel from all of the armed services, civilian technical experts and support personnel make up the OSIA. It maintains close liaison with various interested government agencies and draws its three deputy directors from the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, State Department and Federal Bureau of Investigations.

Headquarters for the agency are currently located in Washington D.C.; however, operations will be transferred to Herndon, Va., during September 1988.

Contras ambush soldiers and civilians

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The Defense Ministry said Tuesday the U.S.-supported Contra rebels mounted their biggest attack since signing a cease-fire with the government three months ago. Five soldiers and seven civilians died in the ambush, the ministry said.

But Contra spokesman Jorge Rosales said he could not confirm or deny the report. "I am seriously concerned about this campaign to create incidents to justify whatever action against our units," he said in an interview from his Miami office. He added that the rebels have been ordered to fire only in self-defense.

The leftist Sandinista government and Contra leaders on March 21 agreed to a truce and to seek a negotiated settlement to the nearly 7-year-old war.

Newspapers quoted the Defense Ministry as saying the Contras on Monday ambushed a Soviet-made jeep and a military truck full of government troops and civilians. The reports said the rebels, using anti-tank mines, rifles and grenade launchers, attacked the vehicles in the village of Buenos Aires in central Chontales province, about 100 miles east of the Managua.

The Defense Ministry said 10 people — two civilians and eight soldiers — also were wounded in the attack.

A series of peace talks between high-level representatives of the two sides broke off June 9. No new meetings have been scheduled. Both sides have extended the cease-fire, which ended June 30, for another month.

Inmates may be linked to check scam

CARSON CITY — The attorney general's office is looking into an alleged interstate counterfeit check scam that resulted in the arrest of a Nevada prison guard in Salt Lake City last week, and Northern Nevada Correctional Center officials are meeting this week with Utah investigators to determine the possible role of two inmates, Warden Larry Brinkman said Tuesday.

Deputy Attorney General Brian Hutchins said he was advised by Nevada prison officials of guard Richard Dale Ward's arrest last week on four counts of forgery, and of Ward's alleged dealings with at least one inmate in the scheme.

Ward, 50, was arrested in Salt Lake City after four boxes of watches worth $8,000 were delivered to a hotel. Authorities also confiscated four allegedly counterfeit cashiers' checks totaling more than $18,000.

Utah authorities said the apparent plan was to launder the goods through the Miami area.

Brinkman added the convicts had allegedly been involved in past counterfeit or forgery schemes.

Panel provides NASA safety report card

WASHINGTON — A task force charged with assessing safety in NASA said Tuesday that attitudes in the space agency have improved but "there is still a lack of talent" to assure accident-free flights after the first post-Challenger shuttle mission in September.

The committee said it found no significant safety issues to stand in the way of the Discovery flight, but that there still were "deficiencies in people, skills, management systems and independent safety oversight functions."

The report card on safety, requested by a House subcommittee, was made public a day after Discovery was rolled out to the launch pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

"The new launch decision management system is thorough and provides for a healthy redundancy of safety reviews and oversights," the committee said, and by proper use of the new systems "the safety concerns for the next flight should be adequately addressed."

In August last year, the same committee — composed of people within and outside the National Aeronautics and Space Administration — was critical of NASA operations, saying safety concerns had given way to business as usual.

Nine arraigned in largest heroin bust

SALT LAKE CITY — Nine men were arraigned in federal court Tuesday on charges relating to what authorities said was the largest seizure of heroin in Utah history.

In all, federal agents seized 7.4 pounds of heroin, 9.9 pounds of cocaine and two loaded handguns. The nine were arrested Friday after a nine-month investigation that involved federal, state and local authorities and a confidential informant.

U.S. Attorney Brent Ward said it was the first time his office had been able to arrest and charge anyone believed to have been involved in growing the poppies used to produce heroin. Three of the nine were farmers in Chilpancingo, Mexico, suspected of having grown the poppies and to have accompanied the heroin to Salt Lake City for sale.

The heroin was 70 percent pure and after dilution could be worth as much as $12 million on the street, said Gene King, a U.S. Customs agent in Salt Lake. The cocaine had an approximate street value of $1.7 million, the FBI said.

Convicted Utah serial rapist pleads guilty

PAROWAN — Convicted serial rapist Blaine Hogge Nelson pleaded guilty Tuesday in 5th District Court to five counts of aggravated sexual assault.

During a hearing before Judge J. Philip Eves, Nelson, 33, also pleaded guilty to five counts of aggravated burglary and two counts of theft.

All the charges are felonies, except one count of simple theft.

Nelson, a former Ogden truck driver, also has pleaded guilty to sexually assaulting four Weber County women.

He was charged in Iron County with forcibly entering the homes of five Cedar City women between July and December 1987 and raping them.

All of Nelson's Cedar City victims — who lived within a three-block radius of Southern Utah State College — had been willing to testify, prosecutors said.

Eves scheduled a sentencing hearing for Nelson on July 19.

Each charge of aggravated sexual assault carries a minimum-mandatory term of five, 10, or 15 years in prison.

With these charges, Nelson could face a minimum of 25 years and a maximum of 75 years on the assault charges alone, the Iron County attorney's office says.

Engineers from Japan, Canada, Mexico, Norway and the United States inspect a fault line in Rock Canyon Friday.

Trench opened to facilitate studies

By ERIC SCHETSELAAR
Universe Staff Writer

Geotechnical engineers, seismologists and geologists attending a national earthquake conference in Park City Friday visited the site of a trench which exposes the Wasatch Front fault line.

T. Leslie Youd, chairman of the conference, arranged for participants to visit the site of the trench and see firsthand the things they learned about while at the conference.

A trench is a place where scientists have dug out the ground over a fault line in order to study the previous quakes and the history of the earth in that area up to that time.

According to Youd, the Utah Geological and Minerals Survey in cooperation with the U.S. Geological Survey, opened the trench behind the Provo Temple to expose the history of the fault line.

Matthew Mabee, a graduate student in civil engineering from Bountiful, was one of the students from BYU who participated in the conference.

Mabee said, "the purpose of these scientific studies is to understand hazards and threats posed by earthquakes. We don't have a doom and gloom perspective but we do it to make sure we can plan for them."

According to Mabee, trenches have been excavated at more than 20 sites along the Wasatch Front.

He said that in addition to studying the fault line for earthquakes, scientists also study the rocks found in the fault line for geological purposes.

Youd said the trench behind the temple is a "textbook trench" because it is well defined. He said the layering is very distinct and there is a lot to be learned on this specific site.

Youd said there is about 16 feet of displacement within the trench. He said at the trench dug in Mapleton scientists were able to date the previous quake back to between 500 and 700 years ago.

"The last earthquake in the American Fork Canyon was dated to be between 400 and 2,000 years ago," said Youd.

The group hopes to be able to date this trench's activity with a special technique called Carbon 14. After finding material datable in the wall of the trench, they will send it to a special laboratory. "This process will take anywhere from one to several months," said Youd.

"On the average, quakes occur between 2,000 and 3,000 years apart," said Youd. He said that is just the average and not on a constant clock.

Youd also said there is no absolute reference to the point of displacement in any given trench or fault line. The valley goes down and the mountains go up but they're not sure of the exact ratio between the two.

Youd added that the trench will only be open for about two weeks because of liability reasons. After the two weeks, the trench will be filled back in with dirt.

U.S. Navy warships had other mixups with civilian planes

Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — At least two other mix-ups with civilian planes by U.S. warships occurred in the Persian Gulf air corridor, one of the world's busiest, before the USS Vincennes shot down an Iranian airliner, American sources said Tuesday.

A six-man team of U.S. experts led by an admiral arrived Tuesday to begin a confidential investigation.

U.S. officials have said the Vincennes fired two anti-aircraft missiles at the plane in the mistaken belief it was an Iranian F-14 fighter.

Iran says the Navy shot the plane down intentionally.

The Washington Post said Tuesday the Vincennes, which arrived in the gulf May 27, figured in an incident last month in which it "attempted to redirect" a jetliner in a way that caused United Arab Emirates officials to fear a collision of two commercial planes.

American military sources said the investigating team had an initial 15-day mandate but would remain "as long as it takes to find out what happened." They said the members would work in total secrecy.

Uinta forest offers variety

By ERIC SCHETSELAAR
Universe Staff Writer

There are a lot of activities available this summer in the Uinta National Forest for the outdoor lover and camper.

The Forest Service has been preparing its facilities to accommodate all of the vacationers that will be out to enjoy time with their families and also the time off from work, said Darlyn Birchfield, information receptionist for the Forest Service.

"We're here to care for the land and serve the people.

"We hope the citizens enjoy their time in the forest," said Birchfield.

There are many campsites in the canyons and throughout the forest area. Some of the campsites are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Others require a 10-day advance reservation notice.

Check-in time is after 2:00 p.m. and check-out must be by 1:00 p.m. the next day, Birchfield said.

If there is an emergency, the campground hosts have radio contacts at each station in all of the camping areas.

They are able to call for emergency rescue teams from even the most remote areas within the park said Birchfield.

Animals are only allowed if they are kept on a leash.

Use of group sites are by reservation only. Reservations are made by calling one of the Forest Service offices.

Barbecues are available at each campsite.

Fires are illegal in the Wasatch Front campgrounds except for in designated grates.

According to Birchfield, the Wasatch Front areas affected are all areas east of Interstate 15, from Point of the Mountain down to Nephi.

The Forest Service strongly urges campers to be very careful with their campfires to insure a safe and enjoyable summer for all.

If water and a beach are appealing, there are the Payson Lakes, Strawberry Reservoir and Deer Creek Reservoir which offer everything from swimming and boating to windsurfing and parasailing.

The Payson Lakes swimming area opens early in the morning and is open for a full day. The lakes are about 12 miles south of Payson. Birchfield said the water is reported to be warmer there than in the other two swimming areas.

Hikers can participate in their sport at Mt. Timpanogos. According to Birchfield, there are a few different ways to get to the top.

One of the obvious ways is by helicopter, but that's not the traditional way.

It takes about five hours to hike to the face of the mountain. It usually takes about the same amount of time to get down.

According to the Uinta National Forest maps, there are several places to start the climb up the face of the mountain.

The easiest is from Timpooneke campground at the top of American Fork Canyon.

The steepest way is from Aspen Grove Camp above Sundance ski resort on the north fork of Provo Canyon.

All the way to the summit from either of these trails is between eight and ten miles.

The other two ways are from the Kiwanis Park at the bottom of American Fork Canyon and from Dry Creek Canyon in Lindon. These last two trails don't go all the way to the summit but still provide a good workout.

Hikers should carry about 1/2 to 1 gallon of water for each person on the trek. Adequate footwear is also essential to the comfort of the hiker.

To receive a 15 percent discount on the cost of using any of the camping facilities, camp stamps are available at each Forest Service office and also at all Smith's Food King locations throughout the valley.

Court recesses hijacker trial; defendant won't participate

Associated Press

FRANKFURT, West Germany — A court on Tuesday recessed the trial of a Lebanese Shiite Moslem accused in the 1985 hijacking of a TWA airliner, after he refused to take part in the first day of proceedings.

Mohammed Ali Hamadi, who is charged with murder and air piracy, cited disputes over his interpreter and his legal representation for his refusal to participate.

"I don't say anything important until we have an interpreter," he said in broken German.

The trial is scheduled to resume Thursday.

West German attorney Rainer Hamm said the parents of U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem of Waldorf, Md., who was killed in the 17-day hijacking, were in the courtroom for the first day of the session.

Stethem was among 39 Americans held hostage when four armed men hijacked the TWA plane on June 14, 1985, on a flight from Athens to Rome and forced it to land in Beirut.

Hamm, who represents 11 Americans who have intervened to prosecute the case, said he hopes Richard and Patricia Stethem's presence would be seen as a "gesture of trust and not of mistrust" in the German judicial system.

But Hamm said the location of the trial in West Germany was influenced by "terrorists in Hamadi's circles" who had taken two West Germans hostage in Lebanon after Hamadi's arrest in Frankfurt in 1987.

West German businessmen Rudolf Cordes and Alfred Schmidt were kidnapped in Beirut, Lebanon a few days after Hamadi was arrested at Frankfurt airport on Jan. 13, 1987.

Government officials later admitted concern for the two kidnapped men influenced a West German decision not to extradite Hamadi to the United States to stand trial there.

Schmidt was released in September in what his captors said was a goodwill gesture, but Cordes remains a hostage.

Hamadi's older brother, Abbas Ali Hamadi, was sentenced in April by a Duesseldorf court to 13 years in prison for kidnapping Schmidt and Cordes in Beirut in a bid to gain freedom for his brother.

The clean-shaven Hamadi entered the high-security courtroom wearing a light blue shirt, no tie and blue trousers.

We have the most beautiful rings in the world.

Diamonds purchased on the international market at centers like Antwerp usually make a number of stops en route to Utah. They are passed from buyers to any number of brokers, distributors and dealers. And each person involved makes some profit on the transaction.

When you buy a diamond from another jeweler the price you pay reflects the mark-up built in along the way.

At Sierra-West we buy from the largest main source cutters in the world and that along with a lower mark-up reflects a significantly lower price!

Sierra-West diamonds are different only in the price you pay for them. To prove it, here is our guarantee to you. Get a gemological report from Los Angeles or New York on your purchase, if it varies more than 1-grade per quality we would replace the stone.

"Making History Appealing to Parents and Children"

"I think young people of almost any age or ability read biography for the same reason that adults do—or would if they could find what they want. We all seek insight into the human condition, and it is helpful to find familiar threads running through the lives of others, however famous. We need to know more people in all circumstances and times so we can pursue our private, never-to-be-fulfilled quest to find out what life is all about. In actual experience we are able to see so few lives in the round and to follow them closely from beginning to end. I, for one, need to possess a certain number of relatively whole lives in the long span of history. . . . The Founding Fathers are often spoken of as if they were a breed apart, a race sent for a special mission, their like not to be seen again. Big they certainly were, but I'm not sure that it's healthy to elevate our leaders from respect and affection to reverence. . . ."

Show will focus on missionary work

Cumorah Pageant grows

By DEBORAH HADLOCK
Universe Staff Writer

The fifty-year old Hill Cumorah pageant was losing its missionary zeal and an all-new pageant premiering July 22-July 30 will be geared to non-LDS members, said BYU professor Charles Metten, director of the pageant.

The hillside production has been restaged and rewritten with added special effects, according to Metten, who has worked on nine pageant committees worldwide.

Metten said the pageant is unique in that the story of Joseph Smith is told in the actual spot that it occurred. This year's production includes the vision of the Tree of Life found in the Book of Mormon.

"It has a number of special effects including fire effects for the burning of Abinadi, explosions and lightning," said the pageant's production designer, Eric Fielding. There will also be 15-foot water curtains.

"The most exciting thing will be Nephi's boat. It will be able to rock like it is on the ocean," said Fielding. The motion will be created by hydraulics controlled by a joystick.

The Hill Cumorah Pageant

Another illusion will be Jesus Christ descending from the clouds by means of wires, according to Metten.

Approximately 750 props are being manufactured at the BYU Motion Picture Studio and the principle set is being fabricated by Kremco of Clearfield, Utah, said Fielding.

The pageant has a new script written by Orson Scott Card, author and member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which tells the story of ancient America and Christ's visitation to the people who lived there.

Because there are new scenes in the pageant, new music was created by composer Crawford Gates, said Gary James, pageant director of sound from Orem.

"It has the same feeling as the old music," James said, but was updated because the older recording did not have a dynamic impact.

The sound track was recently recorded by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir and the Utah Symphony.

The sound system includes a speaker in the center and one on each side, according to James. The speakers direct the sound straight into the audience.

A major task involved in preparation for the pageant is getting the site prepared. "There are probably more than 50 people building and constructing the stage, props and special effects," said James.

There will be around 40,000 new costumes for the cast, said Metten, but they will also be using some of the old costumes.

Out of 800 applicants, 640 were selected for the pageant, he said. Volunteer cast members will arrive July 15 and 16, starting rehearsals July 17. "We have only five days to stage a whole new script," said Metten. Barta Heiner, a BYU theater faculty member, is involved in the staging as assistant director of the pageant.

Continuous $1 night to begin at theater

By CHRIS D. RADER
Universe Staff Writer

Last Friday was the beginning of the new $1 admission price policy at the Paramount Theatre.

Jan Fasselin of Cineplex Odeon Corporation said, "We felt Provo was ready and could support a dollar movie house.

"Many people don't have the chance to see a movie when it comes out or don't get around to it," said Fasselin. "This gives them an opportunity to see quality films at a bargain price."

Fasselin expects to do well enough to cover costs.

According to Fasselin, this is possible because the film rental is lower on films that are still recent but aren't the latest releases.

Don Langdon, a senior from Arlington, Wash., majoring in computer science said, "I think it's great. I didn't know about it, but I think it's a good idea, we can use one of those around here."

Tiffany Lloyd, a sophomore from Nashville, Tenn., majoring in therapeutic recreation said, "I think it's wonderful and will make it if they can keep showing recent films."

The Cineplex Odeon Corporation acquired the right to operate the Paramount Theatre with the purchase of Plitt Theatres in November of 1985.

The new admission price applies to both adults and children for all showings on a seven-day-a-week basis.

The Paramount Theatre, located at 61 E. Center St., Provo, will continue to play recent commercial releases.

Some examples of movies that will be shown include, "Moonstruck," showing presently, and just recently, "Three Men and a Baby."

Mickey grows up; so does Disney

Associated Press

This year Mickey Mouse becomes a full-fledged senior citizen.

The world's most-famous rodent is celebrating his 60th birthday. And, among their other chores, the 3,300 construction workers scrambling around the huge Disney complexes are putting together "Mickey's Birthdayland."

As Mickey grows up, so does the corporation which he represents.

Dick Nunis, president of Disneyland and Disney World, says the Disney-MGM Studios, being constructed near Disney World, will eventually become the fourth most-attended themed attraction in the country, following the other three Disney theme parks (Disneyland, Magic Kingdom, Epcot).

"For the first time, guests will have the opportunity to see actual television, movie and Disney-animation production first-hand," Nunis recently told an audience of business executives.

The studio complex will have a formidable rival in a new MCA-Universal Studios Tour going up just a few miles away.

Projects such as the studio complex, convention centers and hotels, and more retail outlets are part of Disney's new look fostered by Chairman Michael Eisner and President Frank Wells.

Eisner, 46, is given much of the credit for an all-around revitalization of the company since it averted an outside takeover in 1984.

Disney's Touchstone Pictures has become the hottest movie-television studio in Hollywood, its consumer products division increased profits by 34 percent last year, and Disney's theme parks in Florida, California and Japan boasted record attendance and profits in 1987.

The Walt Disney Co.'s revenue was $2.8 billion, and its theme parks and resorts brought in $1.8 billion of that, a 20 percent increase over the previous year. Profits totaled $445 million.

The massive complex is exempt from most state or local government control because of a special 1967 legislative act that helped create Walt Disney World. Historically, government officials have considered the coming of Disney — and its continued expansion — a great economic boom to the Sunshine State.

But explosive growth around it has prompted impatience with the status quo, and area officials want to change or repeal the act to make Disney more responsive to local conditions.

Orange County Commissioner Lou Treadway, an outspoken proponent of "making Disney pay its way," contends that the company has gone "far and beyond" the legislative intent, which he says was merely to smooth the way for a theme park.

"When you get into building shopping centers, for instance, that's a different story. That's not a tourist attraction," Treadway said.

DIAMONDS:
Everything you wanted to know but didn't know whom to ask.
You're looking for a diamond but don't know where to start? Here are some guidelines on how to get the best diamond for your money.
1. First, see a reliable jeweler. We can explain the difference in various diamonds and how these differences affect the price, like no other jeweler. You see, we think you should know exactly what you are buying, especially when it's something as important as a diamond. Just ask a friend about the Wilson Diamond impeccable reputation.
2. Buy the best diamond you can afford. Most jewelers cannot even offer you the best diamond man has been able to produce: A Lazare Kaplan Diamond. These diamonds are cut to superior specifications for unmatched brilliance and fire. The difference in beauty really shows. Buy a diamond you can be proud of.
3. Look for a store that stands behind their diamonds. We guarantee our diamonds. We replace any diamond that falls out of your ring for life, free. We guarantee your ring for life. We give lifetime services such as cleaning, checking prongs and refinishing your ring free. We guarantee you can trade your diamond for another at any time with no loss to you. We even guarantee the price on any diamond or ring we sell!
4. Find a jeweler who specializes in diamonds. At Wilson Diamonds you won't talk to a former shoe salesman. You will talk to an extensively trained diamond jeweler, who is professionally certified. You will also find the largest selection of wedding sets to choose from. That's because we specialize in diamond engagement rings.
5. Find a store that won't be pushy. Pushiness by salespeople only means they need to force you to make a hasty decision or they probably won't see you again. At Wilson's we feel comfortable about letting you take your time. With all we have to offer, we don't need to pressure you into the right decision.
6. Lastly, find the impossible combination: A jeweler that will give all the above advantages and still guarantee their prices! Impossible? Not at Wilson Diamonds. Save yourself some time and money. Come see us.
We please everyone but our competitors.
